Stonehouse is the Best independent biker bar in southeast Michigan. It's a large house built in the early 1920's with large windows facing the street and a big covered porch with picnic tables overlooking the paved front walkway were there is always enough room to park all types of bikes (mostly Harleys but some Valkyries and Roadstars). Out back there is a large lot were we bar-b-que and pitch horse shoes. You can count on a quick run to other area bars on most nights but we always end up back at the Stonehouse. We also put together out of town runs on a regular basis. We have a saying here, "Come as a stranger, leave as a friend." This is as close to being in a club as you can get without actually joining one. After just a few visits you will be a regular with more friends than you ever knew you had. Stop by and tell them Big Red sent you. If I'm there I'll buy you a cold one, if I'm not just wait a little while, I'll be by. Oh, by the way, Tuesday night is jam night when anyone can sit in with the band and we have a couple great local R&B bands who be seen performing most weekend nights.
